Programme Overview

CeDRE International believes strongly in the results-oriented purposive learning approach. This special IRBM training program is meant to help prepare participants to appreciate the theory & approaches to strategic results-based management. It is especially tailored to equip participants with relevant tools and skills on how to apply strategic policy level performance planning and performance management within contemporary integrated results-driven policy environments.

The IRBM training program utilizes a “practical learning for practical application” approach. It is a hands-on training program with an excellent combination of theory, concepts, site visits, and actual hands-on application.

Where applicable, course participants also get to visit select government agencies to meet with & exchange views with local officials working with results-based management.

One of the strong points of this program is that participants get to try their hand at designing and developing a results-focused performance management framework and tools for policy and program performance management under the IRBM environment, which they can apply upon their return to their own organization or country.
